

Kevin remembers Mom

My mom was an amazing woman.

I remember growing up in a house of love, adventure, and diversity.

I always felt loved and encouraged growing up in our house.

No matter how bad of a day I had at school my mom was encouraging and loving.

My mom loved to play games and was very competitive.

She didn't like to lose but would still let me win.

I remember my mom taking me to soccer practices and games growing up.

Even when I just didn't want to go any more she encouraged me to stick with it and to keep pursuing it and I'm so glad she did.

I owe my mom a lot, she was the best mom a son could ask for.

The most amazing thing that I learned from her is that there is so much diversity in the world but we need to be kind and love each other.

My mom was an ESL teacher so we had a lot of her students over to our house.

I became friends with a lot of them and loved being immersed in different cultures.

Seeing my mom help families who just moved to the US with her kindness and love was so inspiring.

And it never stopped she continued that love till the day she passed.

I love you mom with all my heart.

Your son,

Kevin.
