Gen. 6:4

King James Version

And it came to pass when the children of men had multiplied that in those days were born unto them beautiful and comely daughters. And the angels, the children of heaven, saw and lusted after them, and said to one another: 'Come, let us choose us wives from among the children of men and beget us children.'...

Book of Enoch,

6:1-3

And I Enoch was blessing the Lord of majesty and the King of the ages, and lo! the Watchers called me—Enoch the scribe—and said unto me: “Enoch, thou scribe of righteousness, go, declare to the Watchers of the heaven who have left the high heaven, the holy eternal place, and have defiled themselves with women, and have done as the children of earth do, and have taken unto themselves wives: Ye have wrought great destruction on the earth: And ye shall have no peace nor forgiveness of sin: and inasmuch as they delight themselves in their children [the nephilim], The murder of their loved ones shall they see, and over the destruction of their children shall they lament, and shall make supplication unto eternity, but mercy and peace shall ye not attain.”

Book of Enoch,
10:3-8

And He answered and said to me, and I heard His voice: 'Fear not, Enoch, thou righteous man and scribe of righteousness: approach hither and hear my voice. And go, say to the Watchers of heaven, who have sent thee to intercede for them "You should intercede for men, and not men for you: Wherefore have ye left the high, holy, and eternal heaven, and lain with women, and defiled yourselves with the daughters of men and taken to yourselves wives, and done like the children of earth, and begotten giants (as your) sons?..."

Why not Seth?

1. There is no evidence that Seth's sons were godly.
2. Why would Seth be different than anyone else?
3. Godly person + ungodly person \neq giants
4. The sons of Seth are never referred to as the sons of god.
5. The terms "sons of god" and "daughters of men" would make no sense.
6. Genesis 3:14-15 speaks of the devil's seed

For only Og king of Bashan remained of the remnant of giants; behold, his bedstead was a bedstead of iron; is it not in Rabbath of the children of Ammon? nine cubits was the length thereof, and four cubits the breadth of it, after the cubit of a man.

Deuteronomy 3:11
King James Version

Many cultures manufacture objects that have unknown uses. Some of these objects are so big and bulky (or tiny) that they have only symbolic meaning and defy determination of manufacture. How could the ancient Egyptians make the great pyramid or the early Brits erect the monoliths of Stonehenge using their primitive technology? American Indians had their own "objects" and one of these will be the topic of this paper.

Most prehistoric Indians, especially in the mid-western U.S. and Canada, used naturally occurring "float" copper to manufacture tools, ornaments and weapons. Tens of thousands of small "old copper" artifacts have been found over the years. These have weighed usually a few hundred grams with exceptionally rare pieces weighing in the 1 to 2 kg. range.

In 1893, as part of the Columbian Exposition, a large celt (axe) head was displayed at what is now Chicago's Field Museum. It was made of solid copper and weighed 17.7 kg. (39 pounds). The object was 61 cm. long, 13 cm. wide and varied from 2 to 4.5 cm. in thickness. It was found in a Hopewell Indian mound (500 B.C.

to 500 A.D.) located in Seip Mound, Ross County, Ohio. This was the largest copper artifact ever recorded.

The purpose of the celt is unknown. It is too heavy for a man to handle efficiently and when hafted (connected to a wooden handle) in a variety of ways, remains non-functional. Its shape, similar to smaller copper celt heads, was seen and used as chisels and axes. But the artifact was too heavy and thick for such a purpose. If used as a large "hammer," it could have pounded large stones, stakes, etc. But the Hopewell Indians did not use large stakes, stones or other objects, which would require such a large tool. There seems to be no apparent reason for it.

The celt's surface was corroded and covered with a solid, blue-green-brownish patina (two mounting rods were welded on to the celt in the 1893 exhibit). This patina is typical of other Hopewell copper artifacts, and bespeaks its great antiquity. It indi-

“Our friends told us how and whence they came into this country, and how they had settled themselves there; how it came that, notwithstanding their vicinity to the Mexicans [Aztecs], they resembled each other so little, and lived in perpetual warfare with each other. The tradition was also handed down from their forefathers, that in ancient times there lived here a race of men and women who were of immense stature with heavy bones, and were a very bad and evil-disposed people, whom they had for the greater part exterminated by continual war, and the few that were left gradually died away.

In order to give us a notion of the huge frame of this people, they dragged forth a bone, or rather a thigh bone, of one of those giants, which was very strong, and measured the length of a man of good stature. This bone was still entire from the knee to the hip joint. I measured it by my own person, and found it to be of my own length, although I am a man of considerable height. They showed us many similar pieces of bones, but they were all worm-eaten and decayed; we, however, did not doubt for an instant, that this country was once inhabited by giants. Cortes observed, that we ought to forward these bones to his majesty in Spain by the very first opportunity.”

Maximinus was probably the biggest man ever to hold the office of Roman emperor. The Historia Augusta has it that he was 8 ft 6 in (2.6 m) tall, and so strong that he could pull laden carts unaided! The size of his footwear was also legendary, and the expression 'Maximinus's boot' came to be used in popular parlance for any tall or lanky individual. Surviving portrait busts, such as this one from the Louvre, show Maximinus as a heavily-muscled man with powerful jaw and close-cropped hair, the image of a seasoned soldier. Not for him the meditative, spiritual pose favoured by Alexander Severus.

An Egyptian construction crew ran into a burial ground and found several burials of giant humans. Some 16 feet tall!

I was asked to sculpt a model based on one femur. This size femur would have belonged to a man 16 ft. tall.

The bible tells of giants, before and after The Flood.

Goliath was 9 ft. His king Og was 12-18 ft.

Giants have been found in Texas, Arizona, Ohio, Europe and the Bible Lands.

There are giant bones in rock supposed to be hundreds of millions of years old.

47 inch Human Femur

In the late 1950s, during road construction in south-east Turkey in the Euphrates Valley, many tombs containing the remains of Giants were uncovered.

At two sites the leg bones were measured to be about 120 cms "47.24 inches".

Joe Taylor, Director of the Mt. BLANCO FOSSIL MUSEUM in Crosbyton, Texas, was commissioned to sculpt this anatomically correct, and to scale, human femur.

This "Giant" stood some 14-16 feet tall, and had 20-22 inch long feet. His or Her finger tips, with arms to their sides, would be about 6 feet above the ground.

The Biblical record, in Deuteronomy 3:11 states that the Iron Bed of Og, King of Bashan was 9 cubits by 4 cubits or approximately 14 feet long by 6 feet wide!

THESE SKELETAL FIGURES REPRESENT "JUST A FEW" GIANT HUMAN REMAINS, UNEARTHED AND DOCUMENTED IN HISTORICAL RECORDS, ALONG WITH THE HISTORICAL ACCOUNTS OF GOLIATH (who had 3 brothers as big as he), OG King of Bashan, whos bed was 13.5' long and Maximinus Thrax, a Caesar of Rome.
