Thank you for your attendance and support in 2011. We averaged 116 at our 10 meetings last year. When we expect a large crowd we request a larger venue but it's not always available.

Last month we elected TCCSA officers for the coming two years. Officers and Board members at large are volunteers who plan meetings and arrange for speakers and locations. If you would like to be more involved in TCCSA we encourage you to attend a board meeting, usually held in even numbered months of the year.

Our web site, maintained by Ross Olson, is becoming an international favorite. It's becoming so popular that often it pops up first in web searches of Creation or science related topics. If your church or organization is looking for speakers we have a list of local people on our web site. Home school co-ops looking for science teachers should check our list. Check it for updates on our activities and so much more.

February 18th and 19th is our annual Science Fair at Har Mar Mall. This is for any student K-12 but it's more than that. People walking in the mall are attracted to the displays and stop to ask questions. Please pray that the Science Fair will be a witness to many and the Creator will be presented. Our annual Writing Contest is open to K-12 students via the Internet and the best writers may be asked to read them at a monthly meeting. It is our goal to encourage future scientists and writers who look to the Creator for inspiration. For information on these and other activities visit www.tccsa.tc.

Our friends at the Christian Resource Center (CRC) have moved their lending library to a school at County Road B and Fairview in Roseville. For more information on their resources and opportunities to volunteer, contact Jeannene Forshee at jcforshee@usfamily.net.

Russ McGlenn continues to provide curriculum and speaking engagements from his home base in California. His Dinosaur Dig in South Dakota is a popular family activity. Information and pictures are available at www.adventuresafaris.org.

This past fall, our own Julie Von Vett along with Bruce Malone published a book called Inspired Evidence Only One Reality. They are available at our meetings and I encourage you to get a copy, you will be glad you did.

Our newsletter, Creation Bulletin, is available in print, email or on the web. We currently mail about 440 copies 10 times a year and email 280 plus. We send an email reminder with updates a few days before the meeting. To be added or removed from our lists - email david-johnson@usfamily.net or write to the address listed. We won't share your contact information with anyone else.
