Biblical Worldview as it Relates to Science

Tuesday August 20, 7:30 PM, Totino Fine Arts Center, Room FAC 2106, Univ. of Northwestern, 3003 N Snelling

Bible-believers today are a great minority among practicing scientists and are subject to much persecution. Yet, modern science was developed on principles directly derived from Christian theology. Despite that history, science today operates without even token admission of its roots. How does this affect current scientific practices? Can we trust the conclusions of all those men and women in white lab coats? Can science operate in a moral and ontological vacuum? We will examine three examples of how the turn from belief in God has affected modern thought: geomorphology (the shape of the earth's surface), fossilization (the process of preserving the remains of living organisms), and genetics (specifically as it relates to the genetic history of mankind). In each of these subject areas, we will examine the evolutionary scenarios put forth to date and weigh them against solid biblical exposition. In the end, we will see that the evolutionary conclusions for each of these subjects is derived more from starting assumptions than it is from reality. Science belongs under the umbrella of Christianity. Dr. Rob Carter is a well-known scientist and speaker.

All Meetings are free and open to the public, an offering will be accepted.

Have You Considered...

...the lowly ocean sponge. It makes fiber optics. The thin glass fibers of the sponge are able to transmit light even better than our man-made fiber optics. While the man-made optics are made at high temperatures and are very brittle; the sponge's fiber optics are grown at low temperatures and are so flexible they can be tied in knots without breaking! Scientists are baffled by this design and have not been able to duplicate it. Doesn't it strike you that something that is more advanced than what scientists can create, could not have happened by chance?

...stop and consider God's wonders. Job 37:14

TCCSA's STATEMENT OF BELIEF

We believe in God: The Father, Son and Holy Spirit. We believe that the Bible is the inspired Word of God, and that all of its assertions are historically and scientifically true in the original autographs; this means that the account of origins in Genesis is a factual presentation of actual historical truths. We believe that the origin of matter and all basic types of living things, including man, came about through direct creative acts of God during the six-day creation week described in Genesis. Whatever biological changes have occurred since the creation week have accomplished only changes within the created kinds. We believe that the great flood described in Genesis, commonly referred to as the Noachian Flood, was an historic event, world-wide in extent and effect. We accept the account of the special creation of Adam and Eve as the first man and woman. Their subsequent fall into sin, by disobedience of God's direct command, is the basis for our belief in the necessity of a Savior for all mankind. Therefore, we believe that Jesus Christ is our Lord and only Savior and that personal faith in Him is necessary for salvation.
